

Is my law firm seen as an innovator?

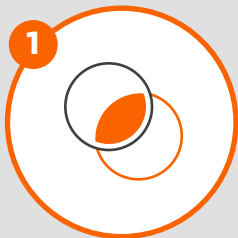

3 lessons to keep in mind

"Times of uncertainty always create anxiety within organizations and a tendency to hunker down to protect against both real and imagined danger. To lead successfully through such periods requires leaders to embrace somewhat different priorities and to be willing to experiment with new ways of doing things."

– Report on the State of the Legal Market

Here are some important lessons for firms that want to be seen as innovators in the coming year and beyond:

EMBRACE TRANSPARENCY

In uncertain times, everyone at the firm should be on the same page. Transparency will help to avoid uninformed speculation and keep everyone on the same path and vision.

PROMOTE TEAMWORK

The most innovative firms seek change to be constantly improving. Positive change within your firm can't occur without everyone working together toward a common goal.

STAY FOCUSED

Remember why you do what you do. Law firm priorities may shift as other factors come into play, but keep in mind your goals and how you want to achieve them.
